XXXVIII Congress—First Session.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.

HOUSE.

The House proceeded to the consideration of the deficiency appropriation bill as reported by the Committee on the Whole, with amendments.

The House disagreed to the amendments to the deficiency appropriation bill, and the bill passed, with only four negative votes.

Mr. Wilson reported back the bill giving bounty to soldiers enlisted prior to May, 1861.

The House passed, appropriating money to pay the Indian and other pensions, for the fiscal year ending July 30, 1862.

Mr. Wilson called up the bill for promoting enlistments. Mr. Grimes' amendment was adopted, giving, instead of two months' pay, six months in honor of the President's order, not exceeding $100.

The resolution to expel Senator Davis was taken up.

Mr. Morrill addressed the Senate at length on the subject.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.

The statement copied from European papers that General Sherman had been appointed to a mission to Washington and obtained here a pledge that the United States would not disturb the new Mexican monarchy in return for promises from France with regard to her attitude towards the South is, in every shape and form, without foundation.

For as yet no official communication has been made to our Government, and no such pledge has been made.

The President's message contains all that has been said to France, Spain, and Austria on the subject of the war between France and Mexico.

The Senate in executive session confirmed the nomination of Chas. A. Dana as Second Assistant Secretary of the Treasury.

It is stated that the Secretary of the Treasury has decided to do away with the whole system of permits for trade to points within the lines so as to allow free trade entirely, so far as his department is concerned, and to make army officers responsible for the amount of trade permitted and for the possibility that supplies may thus reach the rebels.

It is stated that the change will be made in a few days.

Years ago spread here in some quarters that the tendency will be to lead the army officers into speculation; but for the War Department must take care.

We learn through official channels that there are about 1,000 cases of small-pox in Washington—about 1,000 in Kalorama Hospital and the rest in private houses.

(Special to the Louisville Journal.)
